Type III Oral Vaccine To Be Offered Sunday

The final two Sabin Oral Sunday clinics will be held this Sunday and May 26.

Numerous distribution centers will be located in Fayette County, one of which will be at the University Medical Center in the Health Service 1044.

Type III Sabin Oral Vaccine

can be taken if you have not taken Types I or II. You need all three types to be completely immunized, but Type III will protect you from Type III polio, one of the most frequent types.

Type III vaccine was removed last fall from mass use by the U.S. Public Health Service, but will now be used again early this year.

According to Dr. H. S. Edmon, director of Sabin Oral Sunday clinics, the risk has been reduced to a minimum.

It should be noted that a polio epidemic is a rare event and that the polio just because he would have gotten it without a vaccination program.

He stressed that there is absolutely no danger for the college student. For those over 50, he said there is slight danger, but no more so than from not taking the vaccine. "I would not hesitate to take the vaccine myself, or recommend it to my friends," Dr. Edmon said.

The third Type III vaccine is given as a booster shot, and have been no reported cases.

Thus far 2,000 UK students have taken Type I vaccine and 2,500 students have taken Type II.

Prize-Winning Poet To Speak Tonight

Pulitzer prize-winning poet Richard P. Wilbur will speak on modern poetry at 8 p.m. today in the Laboratory Theatre of the Fine Arts Building.

In 1957, Wilbur received the Pulitzer Prize and the National Book Award in poetry for his book, "Things of This World."

Earlier he had received a Guggenheim Fellowship and won the Harriet Monroe Prize and Oscar Blumenthal Prize as well as the Edna St. Vincent Millay Memorial Prize of the Poetry Society of America.

This year he was the first recipient of the Melville Case Award for "Advice to a Prophet," his latest book of poetry.

His two earlier books of poetry are "The Beautiful Changes," 1947 and "Ceremony and Other Poems," 1950. He also wrote the music part of the lyrics for the comic opera "Candide" and supplied a new translation in verse for an off-Broadway production of Moliere's "The Misanthrope."

Combs Says UK Should Disburse Own Funds

Gov. Bert T. Combs said today that the University of Kentucky should disburse its own funds.

His statement came in response to a question by Richard Wilson, managing editor of the Kernel, who asked whether the University should disburse its own funds for its own needs, and whether it should be used at the University.

"There ought to be some checks and balances—some way so that everybody who handles money will have somebody else looking down his shirt collar," the governor said.

Wilson's question was asked at the seminar for members of the Kentucky press, radio, and television held in Frankfort in which approximately 250 attended.

In the question and answer period, the governor defended his administration's policies.

In answer to other charges, Combs denied the state has gone "hog wild" in non-taxation personal services, contracts, or in other payroll expenditures. He added charges that he has dealt so "in complete honesty with the legislature to it."

He stated that the only area within the state debt where he is open to criticism is the $242,000,000 worth of revenue bonds issued for the Mountain Parkway and Western Kentucky Turnpike, park, and other improvement bonds, "and I am ready to defend it as a debt required to meet the needs of our economy."

He also denied that the state's assessment of stored whiskey for tax purposes would be changed after the primary election, and asserted that "we have not gotten a donation from any distillery" for the political campaign.

The Governor also said a "smart politician" took ad-

Pershing Rifles Meet Attended By 15 Squads

Cadet rifle and platoon drill at the annual Pershing Rifles Drill Competition was up last weekend.

The meet, attended by representatives of 15 squads from 15 schools in the Lexington area, was held at the Lexington Coliseum.

Awards were as follows: straight platoon, Kent State; platoon squad, John Carroll University; exhibition platoon, University of Cincinnati.

Individual cadet honors went to the University of Akron. Nasser won the rifle medal, while the Honor Company of the Drill Meet award went to John Carroll University.

The Special Unit award for the outstanding cadet drill unit was won by the Ohio State entry.

The Civil War Competition award staged here in Lexington, as the Cadet squad led by UK's Pete Davidson, soundly whipped the Yankees entry from Ohio State. The competition for the award was climaxed by a pistol armistice.

Tennessee Sidesteps Integrated Athletics

We were indeed sorry to see the University of Tennessee decide to sidestep the issue of racial integration in sports. The athletic council of UT has decided to await any action on the matter by the Southeastern Conference.

This decision makes us wonder whether or not the university possesses the maturity necessary for an institution of higher learning.

Stalling on the issue of athletic integration is something with which we are familiar. UK has formerly been considered as favoring integrated athletics, even though there has been no date announced for the beginning of such a program. The University of Tennessee does not seem to favor such a program.

UT has taken the same position as that which has been voiced so many times before. They want to wait until someone else takes the big step and then follow at a time when there will be no adverse criticism.

The University of Tennessee appears to disapprove of integrated athletics at this time. But there can be no time limit on a policy of athletic segregation. It was wrong in the past, it is wrong in the present, and it will be wrong in the future.

The UT administrators, regardless of what they decide in the future, cannot absolve themselves of this wrong. It will be obvious that a decision to integrate UT athletics in the future will not be based on a moral code of right or wrong, but rather on what some influential people will think of the decision and whether or not the university will materially profit by the move. Such a decision will be based on monetary considerations, athletic schedules, and other trivia.

University Soapbox

A Sorry Situation

To The Editor:

The political science honorary invited Senator Clements to its May 9 annual banquet at a local restaurant. A Negro guest of the banquet, arriving a few minutes late when the private dining room requested took went downstairs to eat in the main restaurant and was told he could not be served.

A teacher whom we were recruiting to our staff told me in shocked surprise that he had seen high school students visiting the University for a musical program ushered out of a restaurant close to the campus because they were Negro.

My experience in trying to arrange several political science meetings in Lexington has indicated that it is difficult to find restaurants where no questions are asked about the color of the guests.

It is true that some restaurants will serve Negroes if they are members of a larger group and if they are smuggled quietly into a private dining room. The incident involving the political science honorary illustrates why this is an inadequate compromise. The Negro guest arrived late without our having had an opportunity to notify the management, and he was not served. The "compromise" is not only a violation of principle, it is also ineffective as an alternative.

The University has Negro students. It has some responsibility for their welfare. Moreover, the University invites a wide variety of conferences to the campus: high school clubs, musicians, and teachers, professional groups, and civic organizations of many kinds. It frequently lacks the facilities to feed all of them conveniently, and it has few facilities for housing them. These groups often include potential students at the University.

It is probable that the University can assist in their housing needs if potential students are the guests and they will be treated decently when they depart the campus. Lexington is not Birmingham. It should not require massive demonstrations for Lexington businesses to recognize their responsibilities to the community, and to the University, whose personnel are a major source of business.

I suggest that the University administration contact all major restaurants and hotels and motels in the city, asking for written assurance that Negroes will be served openly and without difficulty. If there are few positive answers the University should ask business leaders for help in finding adequate facilities. When a list of facilities open to Negroes has been compiled it can be made available to all campus groups sponsoring meetings here, to Negro students, and to anyone who—as a matter of principle, wishes to patronize such establishments.

I do not view this as a boycott, but as a reasonable and practical means by which the University can fulfill its responsibilities and members of the University community can indicate their belief in equality and human dignity. The University has a responsibility for the community and for all those who come to the campus. I do not see how the University can do any less.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Is Board Committee Slacked?

To The Editor:

I am writing in regard to the Kernei article of April 30, 1963 concerning the Board of Trustees charges against Dr. Peterson.

I would like to direct two questions to the Board and particularly to Governor Campbell. Am I mistaken in assuming that the committee mentioned in the article was appointed to aid the Board in determining the innocence or guilt of Dr. Peterson? If not, why was Mr. Clifford Smith made head of this committee?

In the same article, only two paragraphs below the indication of his appointment, Smith states, "he agreed . . . the vice president could be dismissed summarily by the board." This is unquestionably a judgment of a man to be guilty until proven innocent. If Smith's vote is determined already then why give the defendant a hearing at all?

In light of Kentucky politics, one might assume the entire committee to be stacked. Even in Kentucky, to say "way of thinking" provides is disrespectful and provides a platform for the respectable pillars of the state.

Embarrassed

To The Editor:

Maybe I'm just a green freshman, but the "ceres" in Botanical Gardens lately have really shocked and embarrassed me. Honestly, I didn't realize that the city of Lexington would tolerate such "scenes" as examples for its children.

I think it is disgusting, shameful, demoralizing, and just plain sickening.

Mr. Nunn's Ambition

To The Editor:

In response to the recent letter supporting Louis Nunn for governor, I should like to point out the following.

A. B. Chandler, Ned Breathitt, and Louis Nunn were each chosen to run by a relatively small number of influential politicians of their party.

But in the Democratic party we have two candidates with different programs which give the rank and file members of the party a choice, whereas the Republicans seem to have no viable alternative outside of their platform.

It seems that the rank and file members of the Democratic party will also determine the Republican platform since it is now apparent that Louis Nunn will not announce his platform before May 29 when he will accept the losers platform of the de-most candidate in the Democratic primary.

How can a principled man running for governor be willing to accept any platform that will get him elected? It seems to me that Mr. Nunn cares less about issues and about Mr. Nunn's ambition.

We Want Our Tree

To The Editor:

We, the 15,263 Arts and Science School Club officers, are making preparations to turn our hopes over to the class of '64. We have completed our major project—organizing a course in Soviet Studies. There is, however, one proposed project as yet unfinished. Last May Dick Wallace was appointed chairman of the Tree Planting Committee—a tree to grace the landscape of the Journal Building. We want to go out of office with all projects completed. We want our tree.

Imagine

To The Editor:

The campus has been privileged to have the opportunity of witnessing the efforts made by Edward Merri and Robert Haffhill in a number of endeavors. There are no two people who are willing to "go to bed" in humanity than these individuals and/or our community. They should be given the respect and recognition that some high calling.

After reading their letter of May 7 in the Kernei, I feel that I have not done enough to demonstrate my appreciation of the principles they represent. I would suggest that these humanitarian causes could do some no less than a 6-month fast. Imagine the accomplishments!

Dr. Dickey Makes Final Statement To Faculty

To The Faculty and Staff
Of the University:

The temptation to utilize this last contribution to the Our University pages as a review of the past seven years is a great one; however, as sentimental as one may feel, the real obligation which all of us have is that of looking to the future. Therefore, it seems best to use these final few paragraphs to set forth some unfinished business and challenges for the future.

During the past decade one of the favorite pronouncements of our day has been "Stan was murdered in order to protect the principles of higher education." When a president, dean, professor, educator, governor, or citizen has made such a statement he has been publicly applauded and praised. The pronouncement is of excellence, of a high type—yes, too often, however, after a careful analysis it has a hollow sound.

It turns out much of the reality that the standards which are to be raised are standards of expectation for the student only: admission standards, grading standards, achievement standards, and graduation standards. Certainly there has been a need for raising the standards of expectations for students; however, there is a concomitant responsibility on the part of the faculty to raise its levels of teaching. It has been said that "standards, like charity, should originate at home." Some of the "home" standards which might profitably be re-examined are: standards of instructional effectiveness; especially for lower division students; standards of resources available to the top scholar.

The 1960s marked a dramatic change in the way that the American people viewed the world. The Vietnam War, the Cuban Missile Crisis, the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, and the civil rights movement all contributed to a sense of crisis and uncertainty. The 1970s saw a period of relative stability, but the energy crisis and the Vietnam War's end brought a sense of disillusion. The 1980s were characterized by a strong sense of national identity and a renewed sense of purpose. The 1990s saw a period of relative stability, but the end of the Cold War and the Gulf War brought a sense of crisis and uncertainty. The 2000s were marked by a sense of crisis and uncertainty, with the 9/11 attacks and the Iraq War. The 2010s saw a period of relative stability, but the 2008 financial crisis and the 2013 Arab Spring brought a sense of crisis and uncertainty. The 2020s are marked by a sense of crisis and uncertainty, with the COVID-19 pandemic and the 2020 US Presidential election.

At the same time, it is to be understood that the "A" students are not all of the same quality. They seem to feel that the solution to the college's exposure of their education and the development of high status is found in receiving education to the date by getting even higher test scores for college Admission. Our institutions of higher learning are staffed by an inadequate number of faculty members who want to bask in the reflected glory of "A" students. The more "A" students, the greater the prestige of the professors. Some institutions operate on this basis also. They boast of the superior program of their institutions, then completely overlook the fact that their product, the student, is not a superior product, unless he entered as a superior product.

The following results are based on the assumption that the mean value of the observed frequency distribution is the same as the mean value of the theoretical distribution. This assumption is reasonable for the data in this study, as the observed frequency distribution is approximately normal.

The first of these is the problem of truth and falsehood. I am deeply concerned with this problem and I remember that Heidegger has perceptively discussed this problem in his classic work Being and Time. The second indicate an attempt to understand the meaning of truth in Heidegger's sense.

Certainly we have an obligation to continue our system and concern for a constitutional Board of Trustees in order that the University of Kentucky might be removed from political pressure and controls. It is recognized that the University will always be subject to the scrutiny and attitudes of the state ; diminishing

There is a lot of talk about the "new" and "old" parties. But the only party that could be considered "new" is the Communist Party, and it is not a party that we have a right to fear. It is a party that we have a right to understand.

1. The first step is to identify the key components of the system. This includes understanding the hardware, software, and data involved. For example, in a web application, this might involve identifying the server, database, and client-side code.

It has been a privilege to have been a University of Kentucky trustee, and it is my fervent hope that the University will continue to prosper and steadily improve the lives of men.

CATNIPS

By Wally Pagan

Let's get together. Yea, Yea, Yea!

This ought to be the new theme song of the national league umpires with their action of late in the calling of balks and the enforcement of the new strike zone.

Apparently some of the umpires must have gotten their signals crossed and thought they were told to watch for balks instead of the new strike zone.

Some of the men in blue seem to watch out for the ball while another crew of umpires isn't interested in the ball in fact of the game.

This seems to be the case of a certain umpire's crew which is headed by Angie Donatelli. It doesn't even seem to be his crew watches the game so intently but the "just stop" signal with a stop watch flag picking up pitchers who "just stop" for a full second at the back of their minds.

Now, of course, Warren Giles has issued a statement that pitchers are not required to stop for one full second, but they just have to stop.

After that announcement, Tom Gorman, one of the umpires in Donatelli's crew, announced that he would not call a balk for the rest of the year.

There's nothing like a little dissension among the men in blue themselves to liven up the league.

In another category, the new strike zone, the umpires have seemed to fail in their duty. Several players and many of the radio and television broadcasters have noted that the strike zone looks no different from last year.

Either the umpires haven't been informed of the new rule, or they just don't want to bother with it.

The new strike zone was originally designed to aid the underprivileged pitchers because they couldn't use one of their greatest weapons—the spitball. The game was also supposed to move along faster, but thus far, the game is still slow, and the pitchers are still being belted around.

This leads to only one conclusion—the umpires aren't calling the new strike zone.

With the ball coming in higher, you should be able to presume that there would be more pop-ups and fly outs, but such is not the case.

Presently there are 19 men in the National and 18 men in the American Leagues who are batting over the .300 mark with an average of more than 100 times at bat.

Along with batting averages ranging from the .309 to .371 mark, there have been just as many walks as in any other year. With the pitchers getting belted and the walks flowing like water from a stream, the games are just as long as previous years.

Something has gone haywire somewhere. It wasn't supposed to work out like this. The games were to be quick and to the point with the aid of the new zone.

Something gone wrong somewhere, and I think it's with the umpires. So c'mon mups and let's get together.

Kentucky Finds 'Big Man'; Rupp Signs 6-10 Prospect

John Schroeder, a 6-10½ and 265-pound young giant regarded as one of the hottest college prospects in the nation, has signed an official South-Eastern Conference basketball letter with University of Kentucky, Coach Adolph Rupp announced yesterday.

Schroeder, a senior at better known as a basketball player, was the new All-American basketball player in 1962-63. He was a member of the National Honor Society.

Schroeder, who was 17 and 6-10½ when he was drafted by the U.S. Army, and 18 pounds in the last few months, will join the Wildcats their class of 1964. He was a member of the All-American Basketball team in 1962-63. He was a member of the National Honor Society in 1962-63. He was a member of the National Honor Society in 1962-63.

The signing of Schroeder brings Kentucky's recruiting program a long way toward completion, Coach Rupp commented. "This young man is the only big man we have signed this year, which points up our problem of the past five seasons. It has been extremely difficult to find a capable boy with the size that could help us control the boards. We believe Schroeder fills this need and feel that he will have a great career here at Kentucky."

The Ohio All-Stater maintained an 18.3 average throughout his prep career and proved himself as a legitimate shot from the field as he hit on 75 percent of his field goal tries last season. He also scored in his last 27 percent of his prep career. He was a member of the Ohio All-Stater team in 1962-63. He was a member of the Ohio All-Stater team in 1962-63.

Schroeder's high school coach, Grant Wynn, is on record with the opinion that his protégé is more advanced in some respects at this stage in his career than was fellow Ohioan Lucas. "I watched Lucas as a prep player," the 19-year veteran cage tutor reports, "and I think our boy, in addition to being an equally good marksman, moves better and faster in out-foxing an opponent. . . . Moreover, he is a hard-working, level-headed, team player."

The son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Schroeder, who was born in Detroit and moved to Newark at an eighth-grader, aspires to a career as a teacher and coach. He is president of his school's senior class and a member of the National Honor Society.

At Kentucky, he will join the other recruits to Coach Rupp's 1964 class, which includes 11 other players. He will be a member of the National Honor Society.

vious signees include All-American Pat Riley (6-4), Schenectady, N. Y.; Louie Dampier (6-10), Southport, Ind.; Gene Stewart (6-4), Brookville, Ind.; and Wayne Chapman (6-4), Owego, N. Y.
